Several well received vocal numbers were given by a quartet of Anna High School pupils. The quartette was composed of Lou Vandagriff, Raymond Nalls, Etta Vandagriff, and Barty Morgan, with Mrs. S. J. New Record For Mail Delivery Is Claimed

The McKiney Post Office claimed a new record for its delivery of mail, Friday.

High waters in the Parker community, eight miles South of the city, brought what is believed to be the office's first delivery of mail by boat.

Rural Carrier Verbie D. Hayes took advantage of a boat operated by one of his patrons, Glen Woods, to deliver mail to the Pete Murray family.

The graveled road by the Woods and Murray farms had been cut by backwater from a retention dam on the Woods' farm, forcing Hayes to turn back and approach the farm families on the other side of the lake by a wide detour. Woods, who was surveying the high water in his boat offered to ferry the carrier to the Murray farm, and he accepted willingly.

Hayes is an inveterate fisherman and boats are second nature.

The short trip cut down on time of arrival at the Murray farm by about an hour.

The carrier says that mail on Route 2, out of McKinney, has now been delivered by carriers on foot, on horseback, in buggies, in hacks, trucks, automobiles, jeeps and possibly by tractor.

With the addtion of boating to this list, he is speculating on the posibility of a delivery or two by helicopter.

Sunday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Frisby in the Cottage Hill Community were Mr. and Mrs. Gardell Chandler and daughter, Terrye of Lucas; Mr. and Mrs. Gary Minshew and Robert Neil, of Denton; Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Roller Sr., of Celina.

Engineer Reports Condition Of Boyd HighSchool

Fred McKinney, president of the McKinney school board, in receipt of the following letter from Fred Buford, school architect engineer, concerning the condition of the Boyd High School building, following recent inspection:

"Dear Mr. McKinney:

"This confirms our conversation of yesterday after I had checked over the condition of the existing high school building. There has been little change since our last inspection in the condition of the building.

"The crack on the west wall of the auditorium has opened very slightly. However, we do not consider this slight change to affect the condition of the building any more than at our last report.

"The pipe colmns supporting the stairway at the west end of the main east-west corridor have tightened slightly indicating that they are carrying the load of the stairway beams and with these pipe columns in place we do not consider it serious at this time. Otherwise, the building appears to be in about the same condition as it was on our last inspection. We feel that you can continue to use it as you are now doing unless further changes develop.

"Yours truly,
"FRED BUFORD
Architect Engineer"

NEWS FROM THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS — of — THE COLLIN CO. SOIL CONSERVATION DIST.

We have all seen good results obtained when someone made a try, regardless of the odds against it. This has been accomplished by H. D. Powell of Farmersville when he decided to plant a combination of Hairy Vetch and Ryegrass last November 10th, even though the planting date was two months late. As everyone can well remember, we didn't have enough moisture to sprout fall planted seed until November, this being the reason for the late planting.

Powell planted 10 pounds of vetch seed, 5 pounds of Ryegrass seed and an application of 160 pounds of 20% superphospate. The planting was made in fifteen-inch rows, requiring approximately half the amount of seed as compared to broadcast seeding. By placing the phospate in fifteen-inch bands below the seed, it made it more readily accessible for the roots to begin feeding on.

A clipping of this crop was made on April 19th and showed at that time there was seven and one-half tons of green weight per acre. The plans are in a lush growing state at this time and having no insect trouble, a much larger yield in green weight can be expected. Powell is cooperating with the Collin Soil Conservation District. He has established waterways, and stabilizing measures and will plan to terrace this fall. Soil building is his primary interest, because he knows that this is the answer to success in farming, either livestock of cash crops.

Farmers Build Record Number of Ponds Last Year:

Farmers built 87,430 farm ponds in 1956, more than in any previous year, the the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced today.

Previous high year was 1954 when farmers built 86,421 farm ponds. During the past six years the USDA's Soil Conservation Service has given technical assistance to farmers in building 425,521 farm ponds. In all, farmers have built 803,000 farm ponds with SCS technical help. The ponds average from 1 to 2 acres each.

Most were built as part of a basic conservation plan farmers develop for their entire farm in cooperation with the nation's 2,726 soil conservation districts, and many pond builders received cost-sharing assistance through the Department's agricultural Conservation Program. Ponds supply water for livestock, fire protection, small scale irrigation, for fish management, improvement of wildlife habitat, and for recreation.

Farm ponds have been most popular in the southeastern, northeastern and midwestern states, according to SCS Administrator Donald A. Wiliams. Farmers in Texas, for example, have built 14,534 farm ponds. Farmers have built 64,318 in Kentucky, 56,187 in Mississippi, 16,256 in Iowa, and 11,958 farm ponds in Nebraska.

"This indicates the interest farmers have in water storage, one of the measures that will be given added stimulus by the Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank," Mr. Williams said.

The Conservation Reserve, open to sign-up by farmers this year until April 15, is designed to encourage farmers and ranchers to shift land out of cultivated crops and into grass, trees and wildlife cover, as well as water storage.

Another measure of the interest in the objectives of the Conservation Reserve is that fact that farmers and ranchers in soil conservation districts have converted more than 4,600,000 acres of their poorer cropland to grass and trees in the past three years as part of their conservation plans.

In making land-use shifts, farmers in soil conservaion districts planted trees on 367,130 acres during the past year, bringing the tottl to nearly 4 million acres planted to trees. Of this number about 900,000 acres were planted during the past 3 years. Tree planting in districts in 1956 was more 14 percent higher than in 1955. Much of the tree planting stock came from nurseries operated by State forestry departments.

Farmers in Georgia's soil conservation districts led the nation by planting more than 89,000 acres to trees last year.

Farmers and ranchers is districts did 8,250,000 acres of pasture planting and more than 1,248,000 acres of range seeding in the last three years. Plantings and other practices recommended by SCS and state fish and game departments were established to improve wildlife food and cover on more than 411,000 acres last year, bringing the total for such work to nearly three and a half million acres.

Texas Woman Take Part In National HD Week Observance

The spotlight is focused on our Texas home demonstration club women — over 36,000 of them — as they highlight their activities during this National Home Demonstration week — April 28-May 4. Today's Home Builds Tomorrow's World again is serving as the national theme of the week, according to Maurine Hearn, State home demonstration leader.

Many of you are acquainted with the home demonstration club program in your county . . . It's that part of the agricultural extension program concerned with the home and family. New research information in all phases of homemaking is brought to families through specialists, home demonstration agents and club women se-ving as local leaders. Programs and demonstrations in food and nutrition, housing and home improvement, home management, health and safety, family life, clothing, recreation, consumer buying and public affairs are developed to fit local needs and interests.

During the week, most of the 2,000 Texas home demonstration clubs will highlight their activities in various ways . . . The new three-unit water plant at Wylie is an important link in the overall North Texas Municipal Water District project. The water district, launched several years ago to distribute water from Lake Lavon to 10 cities in the North District area, is now delivering water from the $9,200,000 project through 92.4 miles of mains to member cities and the City of Dallas. Dallas is buying the treated water to bloster its own supply. In the foreground is the chemical building which feeds chemicals into the raw water to form a gelatin-like material which removes salt and organic matter. In the center are two huge clarifloculators whose function is to further purify the lake water. In the background is the administration building of the district. The structure also house the laboratory and the operators' instruments. Cities using Lake Lavon water besides Dallas are Garland, Mesquite, Forney, Rockall, Royse City, Plano, Princeton, McKinney, Farmersville and Wylie.

Save Work On Home Ground . .

With sping rains stimulating growth in the home garden and plantings around the landscape, most families are busy trying to keep the areas well groomed. Sadie Hatfield, homestead improvement specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says you are better off if you have a simple, neat design in your landscape. You can save work in keeping the good appearance of the home grounds if it is easy to keep.

The first sugestion is to organize the landscape into areas for certain purposes. Plan space you will need for outdoor work or service area. Consider space needed as a recreation area for resting and entertaining or enpoying the family. When you decide on these two, you can jut the rest into a public area or leave it in pasture or field. Make the public area large enough to form a pleasant setting for the house but not too large to mow and care for easily.

Save work on shrubs and trees used in the landscape by being sure they are adpted to the soil and area, and will require little pruning and care. Place the small and medium size plants three to eight feet from walks, walls and drives, and the larger ones farther away. Use low growing plants under windows. Organize them over the lawn, using only enough to make the landl scape comfortable, convenient and attractive. Remember, each shrub you plant means future work.

Save work on lawn care by selecting a grass adapted to soil and climate. You can plant a low growgrowing grass that requires little mowing and remove scattered plants and other obstructions to mowing. Let the grass grow to the thinks of threes to save an edging work and make the lawn seem larger.

Remember that a complicated design is difficult to keep neat and orderly and good appearance in the home grounds depands upon good grooming.

TIPS ON STOCKING FARM FISH PONDS

Overstocking is the most common error made in managing farm fish ponds, warns Edwin Cooper, Wildlife Conservation Specialist. Don't fall for the common belief that "the more fish put in, the better the fishing will be."

A given body of water will support only a certain number of healthy fish just as a range is limited in cattle grazing capacity. Both state and federal hatcheries supply stock fish on the basis of an applicant's report of surface water acreage. The number of fish supplied for an accurate measure will produce more BIG fish in the SHORTEST length of time possible.

Only a few fingerling fish are needed to stock an acre of water initially, and the right combination of fish is essential in maintaining a proper population balance. Overpopulated ponds will mean a shortage of food and too many small fish.

When a pond's fish population becomes unbalanced with too many small stunted fish or rough undesirable such as shad, carp, suckers, and bullhead catfish, Cooper recommends complete removal and restocking with proper balance. Derris or rotenone powder may be used in removing fish from privately-owned ponds, but is prohibited by law in public waters.

Recommendations call for 5 pounds of 5 percent rotenone powder to each acre foot of water. Mix rotenone with just enough water to make a thick paste and add more water until the solution is near the thickness of ordinary cream. The solution can be poured into the pond from tubs while motoring or rowing a boat. Fish killed in this manner are good for food if taken fresh, and treated water is harmless to humans or livestock.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS KEEP AN EYE ON THE CALENDAR

While a livestock producer may lose his shirt by "watching the clock" too closely, Extension Economist Alvin Wooten strongly advises him to keep an eye on the calendar at all times. Livestock prices follow definite "cycles," he says, and the alert producer can cash in on these seasonal fluctuations.

Little seasonal variation occurs in the amount of meat eaten by consumers, and the price "cycles" result primarily from changes in the quantity of livestock marketed. Breeding dates, weather, production costs and the amount of available feed and grass represent major causes for such quantity changes.

The seasonal price for hogs is probably established better than for any other type of livestock. Large hog supplies reduce fall prices when the spring pig crop is marketed and lowers them again in the spring with fall crop marketing. May, June and July are the the "high" months for marketing 200-220 pound swine while June, July and August are the "top" for those in the 160-180 pound class. November, December and January are the "low" months for both weight classes. Regulate farrowing dates of sows, advises Wooten, and use forced or delayed feeding for bringing hogs to market in the "high-priced" period.

Milk-fat calf prices begin an upward climb in March from their characteristic late summer and fall "lows" before reaching peak "highs" in May. Mid-spring is the best time to market grade Good or lower slaughter cattle. "Low" for these classes is in the fall months.

Although the demand for feeder cattle is good during the fall, and large market numbers are sufficient to depress prices greatly. "High" periods for both Feeder and Stocker calves and steers is March, April and May. Avoid fall marketing when possible.

Fat lambs bring high prices in the spring, reaching a peak during May after fed-lamb marketings have fallen off and before spring lambs reach the market in volume. Most feeder lambs move to market during late sumer and fall with depressed prices resulting in that period.

Last sumer the league was made up of teams from Plano, Frisco, Prosper, Celina, Melissa, Princeton, Farmersville and Community (Nevada). Teams played in two zones, East and West, with a playoff for the championshipat the close of the regular schedule.

Sponsors of teams during the 1956 season are being notified of the meeting next Tuesday night. Representatives from other towns in the county who desire to enter a team this season are invited to attend the meeting.

Regular season play will start on Monday, June 3, in the Midget League and the following night in othe other two groups.

All boys in McKinney, regardless of whether they played in the league last summer or not, are urged to report on one of the dates mentioned above.

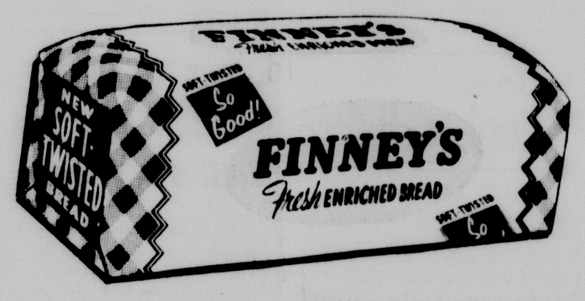
FINNEY'S SOFT-TWISTED LOAF



Bill Finney, owner of Finney's Bakery announced today the introduction of Finney's Soft-Twisted Bread. This is a new process of twisting two pieces of dough together that gives you a softer, smoother textured loaf of bread. This new loaf of Finney's Soft-Twisted Bread is being distributed to all food stores in McKinney and surrounding trade area starting today.

Mr. Finney said that this new process gives a more perfect control of the air cells in a loaf of bread from the very center through out to the golden brown crust. It also helps to retain more moisture in the loaf which insures longer lasting freshness. This loaf also retains more of the wheaty flavor.

In addition to the use of the soft-twisting process, Finney's Bread, according to Mr. Finney, is fully enriched with vitamins and minerals: Thiamin, Riboflavin, Niacin and Iron. All of these nutritional advantages, plus the delicious flavor and taste of soft-twisted bread, can be found in this new loaf of Finney's Bread.

This new loaf is available in the same familiar Blue Gingham wrapper of Finney's Fresh Bread. It will be distinguished from the former loaf of the addition of end labels showing—New Soft-Twisted Bread.

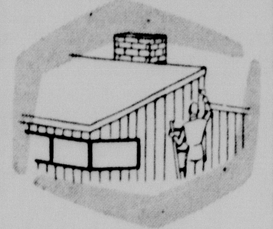
REDWOOD FINISH



Protects, Beautifies, Restores REDWOOD!

Jones-Blair Velva-Grain Redwood Finish gives redwood extra resistance to discoloration — won't let weather fade or discolor it. Velva-Grain prevents the growth of black, dingy mildew, too — restores old redwood to its original beauty, even though an inferior finish may have been previously used. Best of all, Velva-Grain produces a natural, low-luster finish that enhances the beauty of new redwood and brings back the natural color and grain of old redwood.

BEST BY TEST
Under carefully supervised tests, Velva-Grain was continuously exposed to the weather for many months along with other leading redwood finishes. Only the redwood panels finished with Jones-Blair Velva-Grain did not yellow, chalk or discolor.

Velva-Grain was developed especially for the Southwest by Jones-Blair chemistry. Come in and let us show you Velva-Grain and other fine J-B paints.

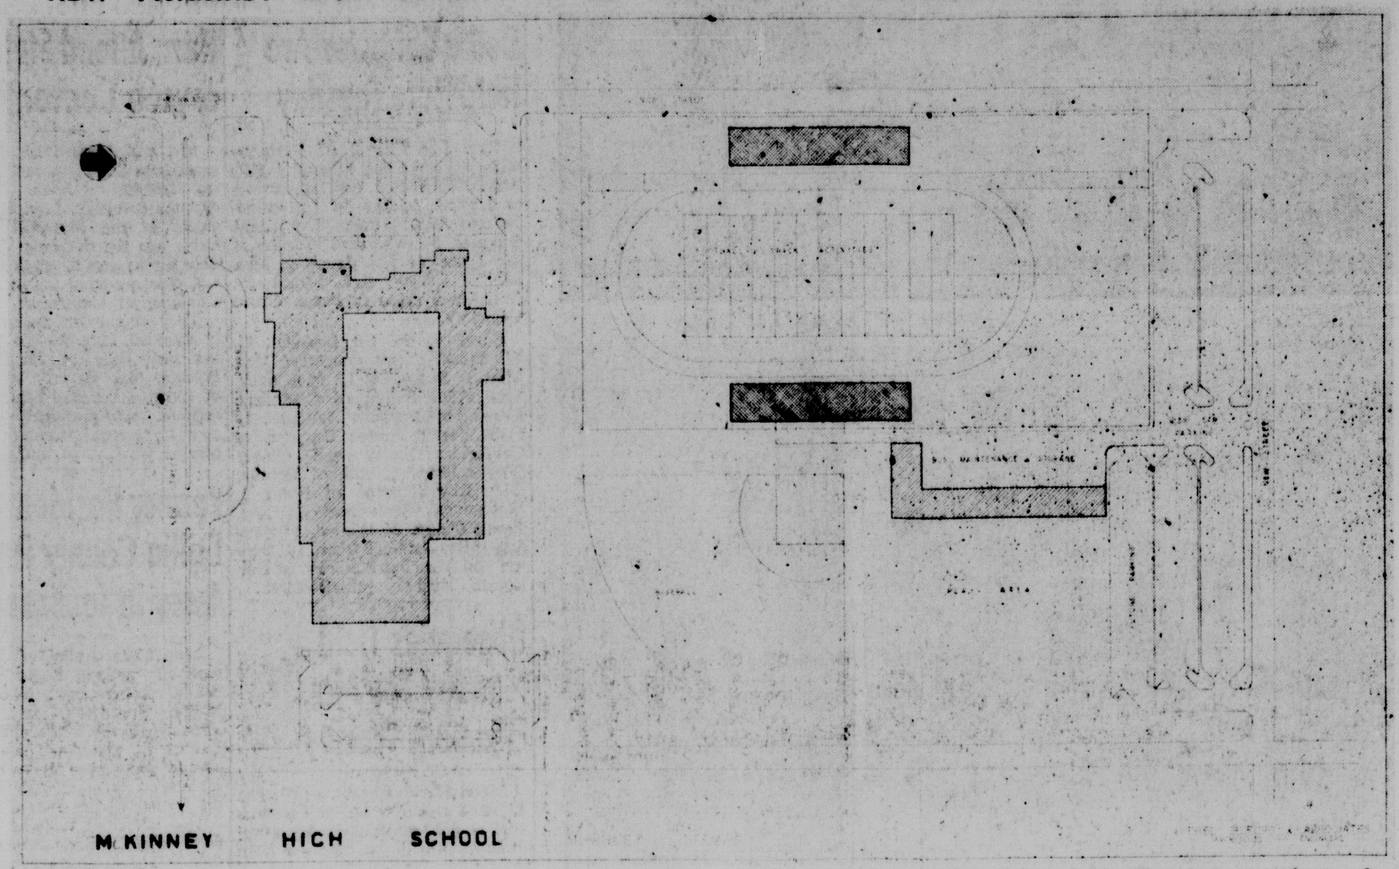
NEW McKINNEY HIGH SCHOOL TO BE LOCATED IN GREENWOOD-MILLER ADDITION



MCKINNEY HICH SCHOOL

Fred McKinney, School Board President, announced today that the proposed new high school building will be located on the Greenwood-Miller site North of Greenwood Road and West of Finch Avenue.

This site was selected after many weeks of study and all available locations were considered.

All sites were studied from the standpoint of location, accessibility, purchase price, cost of preparing land for building construction, drainage, location of utilities, and direction of population growth. Detailed reports covering the cost of ground preparation, drainage, and other factors were obtained from a certified engineer. The conclusion of the board was that the Greenwood-Miller site was the most desirable after due consideration was given to all the factors involved.

The site will cost $1,000 per acre and will include enough area for the construction of the new high school with adequate parking facilities, the location of future athletic fields and playground areas.

Fred Buford, school architect, has just submitted to the school board a revised preliminary floor plan of the new building. This plan incorporates the results of conferences with all members of the high school faculty, the school board and the architect. It is designed to meet the foreseeable needs of the school district and embrace the most desirable features of a modern school plant at the lowest possible cost.

The Board will make further announcements on the progress of the plans within the next few days.
